the wind & the sun

An exciting and thrilling two person outdoor circus theatre show, based on the original fable by Aesop, that celebrates the good old British weather...

Brilliant! Worth waiting a year for...

Two Rival Siblings Battle the Elements in a Competition to Prove their Strength

This turbulent struggle of Sun 'vs' Wind heats up with audience participation in true street style with crowds vowing for their favourite character to out shine the other!

There is also a chance for children in the audience to get involved by creating the different weather conditions needed for the show because, as we know, you can't always trust the British weather!

This bright and colourful spectacle integrates juggling manipulation skills and acrobatics into a simple imaginative narrative that will delight audiences from 2 to 92 years...

In Situ Circus Theatre

Jake England-Johns and Lucy Spielberg have worked as street performers in numerous capacities over the last few years. Their backgrounds in circus, physical theatre and children's entertainment allow them to create innovative and exciting work that utilises their various specialised skills. Their main creative aim is to make fresh, vibrant and quality performances combining circus, street and traditional theatre styles to engage and delight their audiences. In Situ Circus Theatre was formed in 2013 and The Wind and the Sun is their first collaboration.
